ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

PERPETUATING PIONEERS

IN A SPEECH at the Guildhall, London, recently Winston Churchill made the comment: "It is only by studying the past that we can foresee, however dimly or partially, the future. It may well be that it is only by respecting the past that we can be worthy of the future.'

thought of those words of the British Prime Minister last Monday when I was at Fort Langley, taking part in the Douglas Day ceremonies commemorating the 93rd anniversary of the founding of the Colony of British Columbia. It was on November 19, 1858, that James Douglas formally proclaimed the new colony at this historic spot in the Fraser Valley.

IN OLD STORE

TODAY, all that remains of the original fort at the former Hudson's Bay trading post, with its bastions and stockade, the old store. Thanks to the Fort Preservation Society, a small group of history-conscious residents of the Fort Langley district, the old building has been restored and retains much of its original character.

It stands in a little park-like grassland, its stoutly-shuttered windows and tiny loopholes recalling the days when settlers within the fort defended themselves against the marauding Indians who came up the reaches of the river below.

WITHIN its whitewashed exterior, its stufdy hand-hewn and hand-adzed walls and stout oak doors encompass a wonderful collection of Douglas-iana, as well as other relics and reminders of those early days of British Columbia history.

Primitive flails and plows, great millstones hand-hewn out of the local rock, clumsy yokes that once harnessed one, and crude stone and iron implements are reminders that Fort Langley was the first agricultural settlement on the Pacific

CULTURE AND COOKING

EQUALLY PRIMITIVE domestic utensils which tell their story of the difficulties of pioneer life in that pre-electricstove and pre-washing-machine era stand almost cheek to jowl with a beautiful little upright piano, the first such instru-ment to arrive on the mainland of British Columbia.

It was brought around the Horn by Capt. Grant, of the Royal Engineers, nearly a century ago. And as I touched its yellowed keys my imagination conjured up a picture of those self-exiled settlers gathered around it, perhaps singing nostalgically the popular songs of the Britain of that day.

PRICES THEN AND-

Hudson's Bay Company of the early '70's records, in faded hut beautiful penmanship, the purchases of the pioneers. Such items as "Men's brogans, $4; women's shoes, pr., $3; one pound brown sugar, 25 cents; whisky, gal., $5." joit the visitor into a realization of how the prices of both shoes and whisky have gone up in the interim.

After an interesting half-hour in that fascinating little museum. I later attended a Douglas Day banquet in the community hall. And there I met a group of men and women who have lived in the district for 65 years and over, most of them born there.

CARRYING ON TRADITION

m OST}$  OF THEM are associated with the farming that is still the principal occupation in that lush and lovely valley, thus carrying on the tradition established under the Douglas regime nearly a century ago. And it seemed to me somewhat ronic, as I looked around that gathering in that busy farming community, that farmers who know no 40-hour week or eight-hour day should be able to give the time to pause and pay homage to the past.

It is only in the cities that, in the hurry and bustle-often synthetic of everyday life there is little inclination to stop-and take a retrospective glance at those sturdy souls who hewed the first homesteads out of the virgin forest, at those intrepid pioneers who painstakingly wove the first threads of that moral fibre without which no country can hope to attain its greatest heights. Yet, as Churchill so aptly put it: "It is only by respecting the past that we can be worthy of the future."

Death Toll Set Report From Gen. Ridgway Increases Toll Of Red Killings; Estimate Made Months Ago

8,000 Atrocity

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP).—A newly disclosed report from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander in the Far East, has raised the possible total of United States prisoners slain by Communists in Korea to 8,800. That is 2,000 more than previously indicated.

The new atrocity report was to the United Nations, and covered the spining half-ton mines by Communists in Korea to 8,800. That is 2,000 more than previously indicated.

The new atrocity report was to the United Nations, and covered the period through July 20. C. # Black-Out In Vancouver often terrifying.

THE ECONOMIC ADVICE WHICH the people of Vancouver receive from their two great newspapers, The Sun and The Province, is always interesting.

The Sun's theory of more public spending and less inflation—that is, the extinction of a fire by the application of gasoline—is familiar.

The Province comforts itself and its readers by denouncing almost daily the high level of prices and every real at-tempt by the federal government to keep

When the government first raised interest rates by allowing the price of its bonds to drop (the most effective weapon against inflation) The Province complained bitterly that the little bond holder had been betrayed, though of course the government was trying to save the real value of his bond.

When the government's deflationary policy made it a little more difficult for some merchants to sell their goods, in-creased the inventories on the shelves and produced nation-wide bargain sales for the benefit of the consumer, The Province announced that the government's theory had collapsed when, in fact, it was succeeding.

And now we have from The Province the latest piece of economic hilarity.

The government's high excise taxes on tobacco have reduced the consumption of cigarettes. This, of course, is precisely what the government intended. It was seeking to channel the energies of the nation somewhat out of non-essentials when 200 workers, just 200 workers, were thrown out of work in the cigarette industry The Province greeted the news as something like a national Since 200 workers are freed from a non-essential industry and can now go to work in essential industries, producing armaments or household goods, we are asked to believe that the government is in a fair way to ruining the national economy. Since less cigarettes are being smoked the nation's health, apparently, is threatened. Since the government's deflationary policy is clearly working on this one minor seg-ment of the inflationary problem it is pronounced a failure. According to The Province, it fails wherever it succeeds.

This, from The Sun and The Province, is the kind of popular education provided for the people of Vancouver every night. No wonder, when a great Cana-dian city is under a kind of economic black-out, the government finds it so difficult to enforce real remedies for in-flation. They can only succeed when they are understood by the public. The encouver press is doing its best to event any possibility of understanding.

The Brief Crusade

MR. ROY BROWN, OF THE VANCOU-"determined drive" on Ottawa for British Columbia's "rights" now says, in a letter to this newspaper, that he really intended nothing of the sort. The drive has shrunk, in Mr. Brown's latest ver-sion, to a slightly altered interpretation of the tax agreement between the federal and provincial governments.

It is satisfactory to hear that no excessive demands on the national treasury are proposed by Mr. Brown but it would have been better if he had said so at the

Mr. Brown also denies that he is seeking, through a descent on Ottawa, to cre-ate a diversion from the provincial gov-ernment's political troubles here. Yet no reader could take anything else out of his original statement in The Sun. He began by emphasizing and, we think, ex-aggerating the provincial government's difficulties which, he said, would certainly cause the election of the C.C.F. in a three-cornered election today. He went on to declare that there was only one Issue of importance in British Columbia —the defeat of socialism. Then he de-clared that the crusade for "provincial rights" must be launched without delay. If this was not a strategy of diversif from provincial problems, what was it?

We are glad to hear that Mr. Brown did not mean what he seemed to write and, since he is a man of extraordinary influence on the provincial government, it is to be hoped the government will not follow the course which he seemed to

Ottawa and Victoria at this point—the national, not the political danger—has been explained here already. What should always be remembered is this: If the province refuses to renew the present taxation agreement and starts to collect a provincial income tax again then British Columbians will nay will not be the present taxation agreement and starts to collect a provincial income tax again then British Columbians will nay will not be the present taxation agreement and starts to collect a provincial income tax again then British Columbians will nay will not be the present taxation agreement and the provincial income tax again the provincial income tax again the provincial taxation agreement and the provincial taxation agreement and taxation agreement agreement agreement agreement and taxation agreement ag then British Columbians will pay two income taxes and much more than they

It is loosely said among provincial politicians that if British Columbia col-lects its own income tax the federal government will reduce the federal income tax of British Columbians by same amount. This is not true. federal government has agreed to noth-

Those interested can find the facts in the agreement. In brief, there is no method by which the province can get more out of a provincial income tax than it gets from the federal government by the present subsidy unless the province is prepared to increase the total load on the taxpayer.

That is the alternative to the tax agreement and we do not think that the provincial taxpayers are willing to accept it. British Columbians must realize that there is no escape for them in the popular methods of handing on costs to Ottawa. All those costs, whether they are paid to one tax collector or another, come out of the same tax-

A C.C.F. Disaster

THE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT of Ontario has been re-elected, with an increased majority, as it well deserved to be. Premier Frost has provided sound administration with a notable absence of partisanship and spectacle. He is giving Ontario the kind of government

There is little comfort in the election result for the provincial Liberal party and perhaps it deserved none. Ever since the retirement of Mr. Mitchell Hepburn (which was no loss) the Liberal party in Ontario has been unable to find a leader who could impress the public in the least. The present leader, Mr Thomson, seems to be a failure like the others and, personally defeated, doubt less will have to be replaced before his party can hope to begin its recovery.

Also, the party will have to find some better policy than the strange and con ry promises of more expenditures ithout corresponding taxes which Mr. Thomson gave to the electors of late.

They were wise in rejecting such counterfeit political coin.

The re-election of the government and the defeat of the Liberal party had been foreseen. Perhaps the most significant result of the election is the virtual destruction of the C.C.F. as a force in Ontario politics. Its delegation in the legislature has been reduced to two. It has lost the leadership of the opposition to the Liberals. Mr. Jolliffe, its leader, was defeated in his own constituency

Those in British Columbia who imagine that the C.C.F. is profiting by the nation's present economic difficulties should observe Ontario's vote. The largest province of the nation, where the C.C.F. believed it was climbing to power. has rejected socialism out of hand-local counterpart of the recent elections in Britain, Australia and New Zealand The question in Canada now is not whether the C.C.F. can win elections but whether it can remain a significant. power in politics.

The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

EVER since the Princess left Canada, nearly two weeks ago, I have been trying to discover how often she was permitted to see one of our grotesquer very merciful of us. Maybe it happened twice, but my spies say not. Perhaps we Canadians are getting a bit sensitive about these half-caparisoned prancers and cheesecake-walkers since one was kindly but firmly taken away from Vancouver's centotaph on Remembrance Day last year. And since one of the major football teams of the East refused to engage one this season May this timidity increase. If it really is timidity to fly in the face of a big public demand . . it sounds more like bravery to me. Well, whatever you call it, to get rid of this human circus-horse a step in the right direction. And not a prancing step either, or a wiggling step, or a step out of time. Out of time? Heavens, it is in the mek of time; there's not a minute to lose.

LIGHT CASUALTIES

TALKING of such spectacles as football, I was reading a short time ago in this very newspaper that only 10 players had been killed in American football up to Nov. 1 this season (half the season), as compared with 17 in the same period last year. That's good news. First thing you know, they won't need the Fatalities Committee of the Football Coaches' Association . . which really does exist at present, so help me. But these reports deal only with the actual players. How many spectators die in those enormous stands from pneumonia, excitement, drink and bore-dom? Some men (and women too) probably die from three of those four

ANYTHING colder than a New Eng-A land stadium in November I have yet to endure. To fight off the chill, the spectators bring not only rugs but firewater, both inside and outside their body. I used to think I was the only person not sharing the dangerously violent excitement. I'm afraid I was violent excitement. I'm afraid I was bored sick, after being brought up to watch rugger. But I soon found all the Harvard students were bored too. And more than that, the famous Harvard indifference is not just a pose but some-thing bred into the lads, for good or ill mostly for good, I suppo it does them harm at football games

BY THE way, I was once dining after D a game at a little restaurant off Harvard Square . . a few minutes walk from the stadium. Some highly ex-hilarated Princeton students came in and sat at my table. One of them asked me, Say, what is this?" I said, "Saturday." He said, "No, no, what is this?" "No-vember 10? Dinner time? A restaurant?" "No, no, no. What place is this?"
He didn't seem to like me any better than I liked him, so I said, "Oh, this is the Bronx, just outside New York." He turned to his pals and said, "What did I tell you. You're driving too dangerously. We'll all be killed, and pinched too." Turning to me again, he said, "You know what? We left Harvard stadium after the game was over. How crazy can some drivers get?"

A MESSAGE FOR US ALL

I HAVE been collecting a few match-books on behalf of a connoisseur in that line. Most of them have been just from famous hotels and night-spots. But now I have one from Montreal which beats all records. And defeats me, too. On one side it says (in French) appreciate your encouragement." On the other it says "Don't blaspheme." That's all . . . it is entirely anonymous. I suppose it is from some society that goes round stopping me from swearing at children, or children (which happens oftener on our street) from swearing at me. But I like to pretend it comes from some pitiful little cafe which is doing its best, only not very well.

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 19th-Up early to brave the raynes, and fell briskly to my duties at my place of business. By and by to my club for lunch with Master Ernest Arnott and much lively discourse, he Arnott and much lively discourse, he recently returned from the snows of Quebec and sunshine of California. Thence by carriage to government offices for a survey of statistics with Master George Hatcher, most cheerfully provided and of great value in the preparation of an address on the burgeoning commerce of this land. Anon comes calling Masters Hugh Curtis and Ray, Orchard, bright young rascals both, to divulge plans for a mass blood letting, so fearsome that it chills me to the pores, but withal nobly conceived. Thereafter comes to me Mistress Peters, Master Harold Husband and Master Elliott Brown, with a splendid stratagem for the Brown, with a splendid stratagem for the raising of monies for crippled children; being the presentation of a most riotous "The Lavender Hill Mob," ioned in London and full of hilarious conceits. And this will serve the dual purpose of making citizens to laugh, and the crippled children to have comforts; and it hath my heartiest blessing. Lately comes Master Morris Chesnut, lay plans for future charitable works, which he is planning most resolutely. Thus home after a busy day for a roast of beef, held over since Sunday but none-theless enjoyable, and I attacked it with fervor. Having much work to do in my library, I dispatched my wife, poer wretch, to the symphony with Mistress Verna Henderson, and they pronounced it demm'd fine, and joyed themselves in it. Somewhat brandled from the day's events, to bed, where I read a chapter from a collection of sermons by young Canadian pastors: "In Such An Age," finding it sound of sense and wit, and infinite full of noble thoughts.

TUESDAY, 20th. This day comes to me that passionate pilgrim, Master Harry Penman; and he belabored me in weird accents most fear-somely for half an hour on the merits of a preacher named Dr. Albert Cliffe, whose practical Christianity hath inspired many citizens this week past. By and by I chatted with Mistress Nona Damasake, she stylish in haute couture, of plans to increase sales to the premiere of December 2, which go forth most rarely. Thence by carriage through the streets to the counting house, and at a teller's wicket espied Master Leon Bouchard, he the hockey player, in dazzling raiment of burnt-orange jacka-papes coat and bright blue trews lunch with Master Robert Cheyne, the second genial Scot I have encountered this day, and found him in rare spirits at the contemplation of a trip to Europe, which he takes next week. At my place of business, encountered Master Tom Taylor, and Lord! how those Scots do multiply! And this gentle fellow, whose writings I do enjoy, was in a sad taking that his holidays had ended and taking that his holidays had ended, and finding a certain stumbling of his quill in re-addressing himself to his labors. My dessert this night was an apple pye with exquisite crust, and a wedge of sharp cheese, which made me mighty merry. By and by to the Arena, where athletes performed with great, in particular Mons. Leger, a rugged charger with a bag of tricks which do confound the enemy at every WEDNESDAY, 21st. - My boy awoke this morning with fevered brow and a sorry ake in his gizzard which, with the indisposition of my girl, doth make my house like an infirmary. At my place of business, comes to me two fine letters: from Mons. Roger Lemelin of Quebec, who is writing a new novel; and from Master Roderick L. Haig-Brown, with wise discourse of conservation problems. In my mail also an amusing billet-doux from a friend on Life magazine, telling of a rare portrait of Mistress Katharine Cornell, the actress, in which she clasped her hands and looked to the heavens. Quoth he: "It looked as if she were in the last act of Saint Joan. Actually, she was exclaiming: 'Oh, I think canned green tomatoes are wonderful!' " Anon come divers visitors: Master John Magor of Vancouver, to talk of a Christmas party; Master Richard Knapp of Seattle, who plans a spring conven-tion in this city; and Master Earl Hayter of Vancouver, to discourse of "Lavende Hill." But by and by the chief of police calls to say that we cannot present this play, it being Sunday, and thus offensive to certain citizens. But we cannot believe that Christian persons would baulk this project for crippled children, and will appeal this judgment with ardour. Thence to business, which presses; and lately home, there being a fine winter's bite in the air. We sat in front of a fire and I read "The Sea Around Us," a most rare absorbing work.

THURSDAY, 22nd.—Lord! what a rare day this be—the sun shining, the air full of bite and tang, the seas calm and everyone in most gladsome spirits. Anon comes calling Mistress Pat Meagher, with eyes as big as chestnuts, in a suiting of brown, demm'd fetching, and we discoursed of the sale of tickets to our charity play. By and by to my club, where Master Sandham Graves spoke with greaters and features of the sale for the sale f with gracious wit and feeling of Pandora's box, which cast out mean things but retained hope. Thence to my desk, whence arrives Master Waldo Skillings, wearing a dapper suiting of grey and a cigar the length of a cane; and on his retirement, in popped Master Percy Scurrah, a noble gentleman of affairs. And I was much stumbled by the visits of two such eminent gentlemen in such a short space of time. Thus with great a short space of time. Thus with great pangs of hunger in my gullet, home to a ragout of beef, nicely dressed with sauce au champignons. In the evening, with my wife, she complaining that she must still wear last year's cloak, to the theatre to enjoy "H.M.S. Pinafore," competently presented by our own Gilbert and Sullivan Society. I did think Master William Fahey a fine figure of a man in naval uniform, though found it somewhat irksome to note, in the operetta, how man's fortune fails him. My heart was cheered at thoughts of so goodly an audience laying out an excellent sum to help charities. It seemed the best of our citizens were there. Yet there seems some slight inclination to ignore the niceties, more and more attending such functions in business suits, so the theatre lacked that fine scent of lavender and camphor, once the accompaniment fine clothes on such occasions.

FRIDAY, 23rd-A dull day, none too varm, of the kind that reminds one of the onset of winter. To my office by carriage where I learned—the day suddenly seeming much brighter—of hopes that the Korean war, draining lives and dol-lars these many months, may be over by Christmas. An opportune date, methinks, for so fine a gift to world peace, but am afraid it will be of less account to those with whom we are dealing. Into the city at noon for a luncheon of calves liver, nicely turned, and crisp bacon. The stores now being decked with seasonal fripperies, though in sooth the season is yet comfortably distant and I can with conscience still evade the task of planning my layings out for gifts. Noel and inflation make uncomfortable bed-fellows. So home, where a crackling fire is doubly welcome these evenings and to bed after digesting the intelligence of a news periodical. There I dreamed I heard fire engines passing my house, and wakened to find it true.

A U.S. Opinion of "Stage 52"

By ROBERT LEWIS SHAYON In The Saturday Review of Literature

DURING the 1951 summer replacement season I heard via transcription over the ABC radio network two programs in Canadian Broadcasting Company's es, "Ghost Stories." Disappointingly thin, the tales were on the whole cle erly and expertly produced and directed by Esse W. Jungh. "Ghost Stories" seemed to abjure worldly brutality for other-worldly, mac-abre fantasy. There were tone, technical virtuosity, and artful attitude in the Canadian radio regisseur's work, which were refreshing variations from the American production norm.

Radio ABC is now presenting "Stage a new transcribed Sunday series CBC full hour drama, also produced and directed by Mr. Jungh; and the qualities which mark his work were once again present in a recent performance. "The Man Who Watched the Trains Go By' was the title, and the piece was an adaptation by Lester Sinclair of Georges Si-

"Stage 52," it would seem, is not allergic to violence. There were corpses ints first three shows, T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," the train story, and Ibsen's "Hedda Gabbler."

Our Canadian neighbors, who work in a predominantly non-commercial broad-casting system which accents culture, have apparently no reservations about dealing in their fiction with crime and sudden death. But murder, accomplished with taste, imagination, and manner, may be as suspenseful and entertaining on the air as it often is on the stage, film, and printed page.

A managing clerk in a Dutch shipping ine is the central figure of "The Man Who Watched the Trains Go By." A potential paranoiac living, in Thoreau's phrase, a life of "quiet desperation," he is gently shoved from passive to active by the sudden flight of his embezzling employer from the world of respectabil-

Pensions And Costs

Edmonton Journal

The increases in war disability pen sions, announced in the House of Commons, range from 33 to 45 per cent. The rates of increase are, in fact, an admission by the government that the pensions had fallen far behind the advance in the cost of living. Yet the authorities have not pegged the new scale to the cost of basic necessities—food, shelter and clothing.

That means, if the cost of living conclimb during the next months as it has during the past 10, these pensions will be inadequate in a year's time—and the government will be put under pressure, quite reasonably, by the pensioners and the groups supporting

With fine Gallic irony it is the wrong track, and our nude rebel against a lifetime of anonymous inhibi-tion ends his assault on society in a white cell in a brick building.

The tale itself is a neat one, although not quite up to the burden of a full hour's telling. What made it delightful to listen to was its very subtle, restrained and completely stylized writing and pro-

For an hour one was back in our own radio's writing and production experi-mental days before the hardening of broadcast drama's categories. There was release from the chains of the literal in narration, scene, and scene-change: Constantly the author played around and about a sequence, deliberately avoiding the unexpected, with calculation seeking a second dimension to each incident. The sound and the music, though creative, were functional and well controlled, Except for a surprisingly stereotyped characterization of an Ameri can in Paris, the cast was excellent, and Alan King's performance as the para-noiac was facile and very perceptive. "Stage 52" promises us "the world's great dramas." These, to be sure, make ch of Cain and Abel, and blood rivals laughter as chief currency on the networks. The CBC dramas, knowing selected, will not lose audience for ABC Better, they promise to provide a standard which American writers and directors must admire and which, it is hoped, they may bestir themselves to emulate.

Smallwood's Snap Election In Newfoundland Catches Opposition Unprepared For Hustings By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Corrrespontent of Saturday Night and The Victoria Daily Times, from Ottawa

MAY I, living in central Canada at the antion's capital, interest you, living on Canada's western island, in what is happening in Canada's eastern island, the new province of Newfoundland? I can't think of a greater contrast your lush gardens and plentiful growth and the rocky soil of New-foundland where only very few places grow enough to support a dairy herd. Oh, yes, I can though: The con-trast between the Arc-tic and the tropics would be much greater tic and the tropics would be much greater and you and New Barkwa foundland have one thing in comm

If you'll pardon my mentioning it On Monday the people of Newfound-land go to the polls for their second provincial election as a province of Canada. To politicians in Ottawa it is some thing of a marvel of organization that the provincial government has managed to distribute ballot boxes and all the other personnel and paraphernalia of an province. It is more than the opposition has been able to do to nominate candi-They were given precisely days' warning of an election which need not have been held until 1954.

In any other part of Canada you might say they should have been ready. But to say that is to ignore the com-munications possibilities of Newfound-

To get to most of the constituencies it is necessary to go by boat. There are no roads joining the "outports," as they are aptly called, with anywhere else. The sea provides the means of communica-tion; and what a sea! If you heard the broadcast description of Princess Elizabeth's departure you have an idea what politicians have to contend with in New foundland.

The opposition, which is Conservative, were feeling very pleased with them-selves, last time I heard from them, be-cause they had got a candidate for Labrador. He was an air pilot. And if he hadn't been he'd have had no possible means to visit his constituency.

The provincial government of New-foundland since confederation has, as you know, been Liberal, with Joe Smallwood as premier. At the dissolution on Nov. 3 Smallwood had 20 seats out of the 28 in the provincial house. He said he wanted a new mandate to support his "development program." Particularly he wanted popular approval of his policy of giving loans or guarantees to Euro-pean firms for starting new enterprises

There is no doubt at all that he will get it. To most Newfoundlanders, Small-wood's is the government that pays family allowance, the most popular result of confederation Smallwood, it seems to observers here, could have won an election at almost any time he chose to call it. Which makes it the more mysterious that he should have chosen to call it in such rush that the opposition had virtually no chance to organize,

When Newfoundland became a prov-ince of Canada in 1949, it had benefited from eight years of government by a commission consisting half-and-half of British civil servants and appointed Newfoundlanders. When I say that it had "benefited" I know that is highly contentious. It had at least, demonstrably, benefited financially.

The commission government left it an ecumulated surplus of more than $41,-000,000. The latest estimate is that the surplus will be reduced by the end of this financial year to something over $7,000,000. Most of the difference has gone into the "development program" for which Smallwood is now seeking ap-

Three million dollars has gone into a government-owned cement mill; more than $2,000,000 into another governmentowned gypsum mill; $1,300,000 into a government-owned birch mill. Besides these government owned projects large sums have been loaned to various cor orations for development projects.

The Progressive Conservative opposition would have liked to make the case that these development projects should be judged by results, not by promises. For this election, at least, it seems un likely to be able to do so. It had virtually no organization when the campaign started, and it has certainly had no chance to build one since. So far as 1951 is concerned Smallwood is home free.

sian city of Breslau, there's a bell known as the 'Poor Sinner'. Five centuries ago, a famous founder was engaged to make the bell. When the mould was made and the metal was nearly ready for tapping, he was called away for a moment, leaving a young apprentice in charge with strict instructions not to touch. But the inquisitive boy fingered the catch and released the stream of molten metal. Terrified he shouted for his master, who, thinking his work was ruined, struck the lad so hard that he died of the blow. In spite of this tragic incident, the bell was found to be perfect and it tolled first at the death of its founder who was convicted of murder - poor sinner!

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

By LANCE WHITTMER

The Canadian Council of Churches' session last week at the eighth annual convention at Montreal, made important news notwithstanding the fact that little of it saw the front page. A renowned speaker, Rev. Walter Van Kirk of New York, told the council Wednesday that "historians will have a difficult time explaining the spread of Communism to embrace millions the years 1939-1951 while Christianity barely managed to

The charge is one which should be brought me, and not only to church-going people, for a fault lies with a western civilization which has forgotten its ideals.

In 1939 Communism was a dominant political force in an area comprising 7 per cent of the world's land mass; in 1951 that area has grown to 39 per cent.

Unquestionably, a good deal of the expansion can be laid to devious political manoeuvring and the outright use of intimidation and force; but the groundwork, in everywease, was laid by men motivated by fanatical idealism. The dream of economic Utopia and an imposed "equality" is better than no dream at all, but how far short it falls of the brotherhood of man envisioned by church doctrine!

Dedicated Individuals Needed

The church and churchmen stand accused, and rightly so; still, it is safe to say that the world would be a very different place if all the people outside the church gave even token support to the ideals which made them great.

In today's war of ideas, the western nations have lost ground, much ground, most of it without a shot being fired.

It is a truism being broadcast from every pulpit in the land that even more ground will be lost unless Christianity can regain its old force in the lives of men. And no armaments, welfare its old force in the lives of men. And no armaments, welfare schemes, pacts or treaties—necessary as they may be—will prove a substitute for the driving force of a dedicated individual.

It is a sad commentary on the work of those who follow the King of Kings that recent history provides no example of great social reform initiated by Christian zeal since the time of Wilberforce. Only the great colored man George Washington Carver deserves comparison with that towering figure?

The fate of the world rests not on clash of arms or the cleverness of political and diplomatic intrigue, but upon the growth and development of man as something more than an animal, an organism with a destiny that will not brook stagnation.

The western world—the Christian world—today is soft and fat and comfortable. Much of the trumpeting heard over the current unrest among "backward people" is the grunting of the hog, rooted and butted from the trough by smaller fry.

The west will regain strength and virility by stripping the fat

Cougars Chased Royals All Night

The Victoria Cougars put on one of the most stirring rallies in their short history in the last period of Friday's game with New Westminster Royals. They got three goals in the final frame and bowed out 6-5 in a great finish. Unfortunately it wasn't that close during the earlier part of the game. In the first two periods, the yon and seldom succeeded in catching the elusive league leaders. Typical of this pursuit sees Ernie Roche, one-third of the Cougars' defense, chasing Royals' centre Guyle Fielder along the boards.

Volume Increases

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (CP) .-Stock prices continued steady to lower at mid-session today. Trading volume increased to a moderate pace.

Changes were mainly frac-tional, although the odd issue ranged to about a point.

Papers were in the forefront of the decline. Utilities and steels dipped slightly. Senior metals, senior oils and carriers were irregularly lower.

Beverages were steady, while miscellaneous industrials mixed gains and losses.

Banks found mild support, moving slightly higher

Placer development, which dropped one and a half points yesterday, was off one point at 4912. Powell River traded at 25,

THE WEEK IN BUSINESS

Prices Decline To July Levels

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor For the first time in many months the stock exchanges went through a whole week on a flat note without a single rally to check the downward flow of the averages on To-

Industrials, which originated the upward swing of the market in 1949, were the worst sufferers. On Toronto the average of 20 industrial stocks declined by 11.2 points to 332.28, points to 332.28.

stood at 737.33, compared with the 1951 high of 889.49, and with Since Ch nigh of 126.43.

In view of the fact that the base metal and western oil indices do not include the stocks of the younger and more speculative issues, the full extent of the losses during the week are not clearly shown in these fig-ures. Some of the smaller oils and base metals shares toppled as much as 25 per cent of

One reason why the Canadian market is slipping faster than Wall Street may be that it rose at a considerably higher tempo.

The cause of this week's continued and most serious decline so far may be traced to the uncertainty of the international position now that a cease-fire appears imminent in Korea. Industrialists fear it may cause an immediate contraction of the flow of defense contracts To many firms, particularly in the U.S., which have just geared themselves to warlike production, a big change of policy at this stage would be near to the of the Canadian Pulp and Paper

This huge expansion program ompares favorably with that of the heavier populated areas of eastern provinces of Ontario and Quebec where contracts awarded amounted to $791,000,000 and $379,000,000, respectively, said the minister.

In terms of percentage change for this period, over the same period in 1950, the increase in British Columbia compared to the eastern provinces is even more apparent. It shows that Ontario and Quebec advanced 83 per cent, respectively, while this province increased 478 per cent.

Radiator Needs Paint Job Too

Just as it's important to have your furnace cleaned for winter use, it's important to have your radiators ready for their winter job. You can make sure that they will give off the maximum degree of heat by having them painted with a semi-gloss paint. Painting radiators to match the wall be hind them serves to camouflage their outlines and helps them to blend in with the room's decorative scheme.

Individuals may receive larger foans than formerly, and could receive firm bids from contractors that would include the contractor's profit.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

On Monday, Mrs. Alma Jordan will celebrate an 82nd birthday. She doesn't want any fuss made of the day. "After all, it's just another milestone," she tells you with a shrug of her expressive shoulders and an added twinkle in blue eyes, still bright and young despite her years.

"It's been a good life," she says, "full of work, and fun, and adventure. "I look back across the years and I wouldn't give up one experience I have had." years.

And Alma Jordan has had experience aplenty.

For she came to western Ontario from her native Germany many years ago, and raised a family of six children on a pioneer farm in the Lake of the Woods district.

"It was rugged," she remembers, "and there I made my own hyper my own byters. Force was lots of work. I made my own bread, my own butter. Everything. Why, I even made dolls for my girls out of bits of cloth, and then embroidered the faces. They were good dolls, too."

Her hands, withered a bit with her 82 years of doing, but still with a hint of determination in the curve of the fingers, waved expressively as she described her pioneer home, the paths through woods, the complete isolation.

"I was often alone with the babies," she tells you, "but I w there was a Power that would care for me and I wasn't

The hands move again and she nods her head slowly "Well perhaps once I was afraid but I found out I was The Indians were our friends but once and awhile there came a bad one," she explained.

This day I was alone with the baby and the Indian knocked he front door. When I opened it he had his knife out and he asked for meat. I did not have meat and I shook my head. But he came right in the room."

Footsteps Save Baby's Life

Mrs. Jordan's eyes sparkle as she thinks back to that day. She backed across the room, her baby clutched tightly in her arms. The adian, crazed and hungry, following her. He pointed at the baby, rade signs that he wanted to take the tiny tot from her arms.

"I just kept backing away from him around the room and saying 'no'," she tells you, "and I was praying. Praying out loud. Asking for relp from somewhere, somehow." The old sheulders droop a little with despair, even now, as Alma Jordan tells her story.

"Our house had a veranda all around it," she explains, "and suddenly I heard seavy footsteps at the back.

"That Indian heard the steps, too. He sheathed his knife and got out the front door and ran.

"When I stopped shaking, I went with my baby to the back door because I could still hear the heavy steps out there."

Her face wrinkles in a rappy smile as she flings the door open for you in her easy reministing. Shechuckles and rocks back and forth a little in her chair as she again savors her happiness—and her surprise.

"What do you think walked in that door. A calf the children had for a pet. It was the calf that saved us!"

The expressive face, wrinkled with years of living, but intelligently alert and happy, softens into serious thought.

"You see, there was a Power looking after me. I never doubted

It is this philosophy that has brought Alma Jordan through the pioneer years to a happy and restful older life. She has her own apartment at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, close to her daughters, Mrs. Norma Macdonald, Miss Frances Jordan and Mrs. Saelinger. "I look out at the sea and the mountains. I have my friends around me. Some of them from those good days on the farm. Of course, I must be much quieter now. I do not de much any more. Just enjoy life!"

"But it is still a good life, and I would not change any of it! Happy birthday, Alma Jordan! We hope you enjoy every minute scent, speaks four languages, including English with a delightful accent that is very pleasing to the ear.

Many Victorians will be interested in young Struan David Shirley, not only because he is a bonny baby, but because he is the great-great-grandchild of the late James Yates, member of the first Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, and the great-Yates, pioneer lawyer of this city. His mother, Beverley, is the second daughter of the late Robert Stuart Yates, well-known city lawyer and at one time clerk of the Legislative Assembly.

It is to make money for these children that the auxiliary holds an annual Holly Bazaar. This year it is planned for next Saturday afternoon from 2.30 to 5.30 at the home, 2691 Cook Street.

Mrs. J. D. Hunter will open the affair at 2.30, and there will be articles suitable for Christmas gifts for babies and older chil-dren on sale, also garden, home cooking, candy and superfluity and novelty stalls.

Auxiliary president Mrs F. G. Hart with Mrs. Ada Barner, matron at the home, will receive guests and afternoon tea will be served in the dining room.

The first radio performance of Allegro, successful musical play by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 11, will be presented by Theatre Guild On the Air, Sunday on KOMO at 5.30, starring Jane Powell, John Lund and Kenny

First produced by the Theatre Guild in the fall of 1947, Allegro ran for 268 performances on Broadway. The story starts in 1905 on the day Joseph Taylor Jr., is born, and follows his life to his 35th Allegro, wrote Brooks Atkinson in the New York Times, "has made history on Broadway . . . a musical play of superior quality . . . torn out of the folk life of America." The full hour broadcast will originate at the Masonic Temple, in Detroit, Michigan,

With show tunes of last year, Curt Massey and Martha Tilton sing their way into the 130th week of Curt Massey Time, heard on KIRO Monday through Friday at 4. The tunes include "Ocarina" and "Bye, Bye Baby."

couver branches of The Sunshine Society, and the couver branches of The Sunshine Society, and the fur is flying. It started when the male vocalists in the Toronto gang, George Murray and Billy O'Conner, made some disparaging remarks on the air about Vancouver troubadour Ed McCurdy. The next week the Vancouver branch retaliated by producing an aged character called Grandmother Ermatrude Harrison who claimed she used to go around with Murray and O'Conner "when they were in vaudeville back in 1902."

She even produced a recording-on eylinder, of course—which she says they made even earlier than that. It turned out to be a terribly scratchy recording of a song often sung by George and Billy.

They were quite worried about what this might do to their careers—until they remembered "the record was played after McCurdy had sung, so of course no one would be listening!

The Toronto boys (heard Tuesdays) feel that the Vancouver contingent (Mondays) has an unfair advantage-the westerners have a week to prepare subtle digs, while the Toronto gang has only 24 hours.

PERON MADE SURE

OF ELECTION WIN

Argentine Dictator Throttled Opposition's Voice; Even Resorted To Jailing Opponents

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Juan Peron, riding the crest of a 2 to 1 election majority, may be able to contend honestly that Argentina's recent voting was really fair. But that was all part of the plot; the rigging was done in advance.

Every dictator yearns for respectability, and Peron is no exception. He would like the world to believe he is actually the choice of his people. Perhaps he is, but this election did not prove it.

For the dictator who resorts to the forms of demorracy in the course of demorracy in the cours

For the dictator who resorts to the forms of democracy to enhance his stature still finds it necessary to eliminate the inherent risks of the democratic method. Peron took care of that aspect of his problem nicely.

First of all, he held tight rule over press and radio, effectively throttling the opposition's voice.

A great deal of steel goes into the making of a pattleships, of course, float or there would be no use having them. Yet steel, generally, is regarded as too heavy to float on water by itself. But did you know that you can make a piece of soild steel float in your own living-room? It's a very simple trick.

First, fill an ordinary kitchen tumbler with water. Now take a piece of cigarette paper and place this flat upon the water's surface. The piece of soild steel—a needie!—confes next. Lay this very gently upof the cigarette paper and sit abeck for things to happen.

In a few minutes you'll find the eigarette paper will sink and, if no nee shakes or disturbs the glass, the needed will float!

STAMPS

Beware Disappointments

It is unfortunate but true that a stamp catalogue, in the hands of a novice, is almost useless when it comes to appraising the value of a collection. For there are so many things to be taken into consideration, most of which have an adverse-effect on price, that whe beginner, after running through his collection, will end up by imagining that it will detch from 10 to 20 times its real

The dealer has the unpleasant job of breaking the bad news, and for this reason usually prefers to buy from someone who is familiar with stamps, although in time he gets used of the suspicious glance and the coldy polite refusal which he generally earns when making an offer:

AT DISCOUNTS

One basic fact that is hard to rplain to the layman (because the trade to retail stamps at discounts ranging at from 35% to 75% off the list prices. Possibly the reason for this is that the psychological effect of buying at around half price makes the customer happier, even though he knows quite well that he is really milk, in virtually everybody's mind, an article of special interest next week by Archie Wills tells of what happens to milk from the time it leaves the farm to the time it arrives on your doorstep. Times have changed considerably, the writer found after his tour of the local dairies, from the time when, as an enterprising boy, he bought a cow himself and peddled milk to the neighbors.

If pruning seems to you a great

Till pruning seems to you a great art to be left to experts only, you will get some advice next week from Cecil Soily. Sharp tools and common sense, are the essentials, he says. Then, with a few tips, which he gives, anyone can prune his own trees and shrubs. "From Tommy Guns to Tomatoes" is the subject of C. V. Faulknor on the same page next week.

There was quite a flurry when it was discovered that at every Sunday school session the little fellow was praying, "Lead us not into 'temptation, but deliver us some evil."

Anyhow, this factor deflates the value of the collection by 50% for a starter—and don't forget that this is a retail discount; the dealer who has to make a living has to have his cut in addition.

But this is only the beginning. There is the vital matter of condition to be considered, which causes more disappeintments and headaches than anything else connected with the hobby. For these frail pieces of paper which we call stamps can have almost as many things wrong with them as a human being.

The older and rarer they are, the bigger the olds that they ave, some defects which cut their value down to next to nothing.

Tears, missing "teeth," thin spots due to peeling instead of soaking them off the envelope, heavy obliterations, creases, stains, trimmed margins, and even bad centring, all help to make a stamp unsaleable. The owner naturally thinks that the collector is unreasonable in expecting that a stamp 100 years old be perfect in all respects, and so he is, really. But the philatelist replies that if he is to pay, say, $50 for a small and intrinsically worthless piece of paper he has the right to be particular!

the matter. "For some undiscoverable reason," writes Beaton, "although she had given me every help and encouragement with the book and was flattered that I should include her among my favorites, my friend Lady Cunard, in a fit of pique, burnt the book at a luncheon party, running it through with a red-hot poker and lamenting, 'He's a low fellow, and it's a terrible book!'"

Needless to say, with publicity like this, the book anheved great notoriety and success. Greta Garbo he still considers the most beautiful of women. In his list of most consistently lovely are Lily Esie, Lady Diana Cooper, Paula Gelibrand, the Duchess of Kent and Miss Garbo. His second meeting with Garbo was enlivened by her request, which she was very reluctant to make, for a passport photo,

Another factor which has a big effect on prices is popularity. Stamps of the Portuguese colonies, and from certain Asiatic countries, for instance, don't seem to have the same appeal, so though they may be of high catalogue value they are subject to much greater discounts than those of the U.S. and B.N.A., which 'rank at the top. The catalogues should reflect this trend to a greater degree than they do in order to be of help to the beginner.

This isn't Beaton's first book. In the early, thrities, when he thad already become a by-word for originality among ladies of fashion, he had a notion to publish a modern Book of Beauty, to be an imitation of the Victorian albums in which lovely young ladies swooned over doves, read love letters, etc. The modern version would include Beaton's prographs and some of

Singing Children Tells. Of Wo Doukhobors SUSPICIOUS, HOMESICK THEY FOUND SOLACE IN OLD RUSSIAN HYMNS

By N. DE BERTRAND LUGRIN Author of "Pioneer Women of Vancouver Island"

It was 20 years ago. The Doukhobors had defied all authority, and the government was compelled to take action. Seven hundred and more of the "Sons of Freedom" had been arrested and sentenced to threeyear terms in the penitentiary for arson, nucle parading and other offenses. Because of the overcrowding of penal institutions, they were taken to Piers Island, where quarters had been prepared for them. I went to Sidney to witness their arrival there and their departure for their new home.

They were a pathetic-looking lot, their mouths stubborn, but their eyes tragic. Some of them shaking from head to foot. They did not know what was in store for them, but expected severe punishment, perhaps torture. Worse than all else was their fear for the fate of their children. I was assigned to write the story of the children.

I went first to Vancouver and was driven to the Boys' Industrial School. It is magnificently situated on rising land overlooking pleasant valleys. Its many acres are enclosed in a stone or brick wall, but the gates are wide open, drives lead throughout the grounds, and pleasant walks bisect the gardens.

Disect the gardens.

The buildings are large and substantial, vines covered the frontal elevation, and flowers were everywhere. No evidence at all that the school was in reality a prison, where most of the boys serve sentences for misdemeanors and incorrigibility.

As we drove up we saw 50 or more lads, naked to the walst, their lithe bodies brown as their khaki shorts, working in the landscape garden. They looked very fit, and talked and laughed cheerily.

But these were not the Doukhobor

They had their own special quarters, and worked by themselves under supervision, chiefy at gardening, though some of them were learning carpentry and all of the younger ones went to school. The superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Branckin, had the greatest hopes for them. "All they need," said Mr. Branckin, "is to be taught. It takes a lot of tact and persever ance, for by nature they are very stubborn, quite convinced that they are right and that the rest of the world means to persecute them. But

STURDY, WELL BUILT

We first saw the lads in their dining-room, their meal consisting of bread, peanut butter, lettuce and fruit. They were a fine-looking lot, sturdy, well built, the Slav cast of feature. predominant in most of them, but some of them quite like our own small boys, curly-haired, with long-lashed, gentle eyes. There were 102 boys, their ages ranging from 7 to 18.

They were very kind to one an-ner, Mrs Branckin told us. "The g ones look after the little fellows, hen the young ones get homesick d cry, it's nice to see the older es comfort them. They won't talk us, they don't know English, and yway they don't trust us yet. They

In answer to our question as to whether he had any trouble with them, he replied that he did at first, for they refused to work. "So I fold them, "Very well, if you don't want to work, I won't insist. But you can't stand about the grounds and buildings all day." So I sent them up to the top of. the hill and placed them, at intervals of six feet, and told them to stop there and scare away the crows and pheasants from the crops. They stood it for two days, leaving only, for meals, then one of them suggested it was appretty silly business, and that they had decided they would do any work they could to help on the farm. I've had on further trouble on that score."

RHYTHM AND HARMONY

Alec Veregin, about 18 years of age, head of their own cooking staff, and one of the leaders of the community at the school, spoke Engish every well, and I told him that they should not be unhappy when all anybody wanted to do was to help

"We don't mind," he replied, "for ourselves. But our little brothers and sisters. ..." he bit his lip quickly and did not continue.

THEIR OWN CATERING
THEIR OWN CATERING
THEIR OWN catering was all in their own hands, and they were scrupulously clean about their cooking. They are vast quantities of bread but would not touch butter or milk. They like all sorts of vegetables, especially those which could be baten uncooked. They would eat nothing that had been killed.

Their day began with prayer, and they said grace before each meal.

"Every evening." said the superintendent, "they take a loaf of bread, a dish of sait and a jug of water to one of their rooms, where they hold a sort of communion service, under the leadership of the older boys, a different one each evening. All the children take some part. They are dignified and devout in their forms of worship. Of course they are conducted entirely in Russian."

In answer to our request that the obys sing for 4s, they all filed into he dining-room and stood over against the east wall, more than 100 obys, in their khaki uniforms, arms olded across their breats, their aces very serious, but their eyes right. Every one of them sang, room the oldest to the youngest, full, rich voices, head-tones predominat-ing, treble of the little boys, deeper notes of the youths.

They sang in perfect rhythm and harmony the old Russian hymns of their people. One of the oldest, their song leader, gave the first note of each verse, and then, as guick and true as the stroke of a bell, the whole choir joined, Many-versed, these Russian Doukhobor hymns, with a plaintive, swinging refrain.

"Pease tell us the correct play in this situation," requests a Brooklyn reader. "Both sides needed 90 points for the initial meld, and the card turned up by the dealer was a four. I was first, and I drew from the stock and discarded another four. The next player drew from the stock and discarded a jack.

"Much to my joy, my partner put down, three aces and two jacks, which enabled her to take the discard pile. She now had three jacks and three aces on the table, and two fours among the cards in her hand. She discarded a queen, and the play

"Everybody discarded safely for that round of play, and my partner drew from the stock, melded three fours, and discarded. This left her with four cards in her hand.

"The next player discarded safely to me, and I held the following cards:

"What was my best play?"

The answer depends slightly on how good a player the partner happens to be. Your course is clear if your partner is a good player, but your partner is a beginner.

A good player has a definite idea in mind when she melds the three fours at her second turn to play. She already has her initial meld on the table, and the three fours can hardly be considered an important meld. The only possible reason for the play is that she is ready to meld out if she can only get a base of four natural cards somewhere or other. At least three of her four remaining cards must be wild cards.

Hence you must cooperate by providing the base. You must add the act wo melds, thus giving her two bases. Then, you should add your deuce to either of those two melds. This will give your partner the media. This will give your partner the making your three tens to provide a parking space for any odd ten your partner may happen to hold.

If your partner is a poor player, her play may have any meaning or none at all. It is still wise to add the acc and four to her melds, but you should probably stop right there. Save your deuce and your three tens, until you see how the play develops. For Amateurs To

This summer's Scout Jamboree at Bad Ischl in Austria not only gave Scout Sidney Bell of Victoria a chance of a wonderful tour of Europe, but it is also shaping him into an experienced public speaker. The jamborce opening ceremony took place in a natural saucer-shaped arena. Each nation marched its conungent into the arena and when they had all assembled there were 15,000 Scouts lining the slopes. A general view of the opening ceremony.

SWAPPING AND TRADING said Bell.

"Swapping and trading was the No. 1 pursuit, and I managed to collect a whole lot of souvenirs."

The Canadians made themselves popular. They had a band of their own, composed of guitars, mouthorgans and accordions, but they also puiled off a number of stunts to amuse and amaze the natives. For instance, too Lewisyof Summerland, B.C., got himself an Iroquois haircut and when he stuck a feather in what remained of his hair stops ureaper than in Canada, but others were dearer.

For instance, musical instruments were cheap. An accordion, worth $200 in Canada could be bought for $45, but a bottle of coke—the only soft drink available—was dear. It cost 2 shillings, about 16 cents.

In the banks where Bell and the other scouts changed their travelers cheques, they were amazed at the casual way in which the Austrian bankers handled their paper money.

'It isy in a huge untidy heap on a big table behind the counter,' said Bell. "Of course, the paper money there wasn't so valuable. I got 500 schillings for my $20 cheque, and that was probably made up of 250 two-schilling notes."

FESTIVAL OF BRITAIN

On the way home the Canadians again stopped in London to pay further visits to the Festival of Britain. They also saw the Tower of London, Windsor-Castle, Oxford University, Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament. The Festival of Britain they all thought was superb. The return trans-Atlantic journey was made aboard the Sythia, and the highlight was when the scouts found that one of the girl passengers was having her birthday. "We gave her a party, and before the whole ship's complement each of the 32 Canadian scouts stepped up and gave her a kiss. "You don't think we would have gone to all that trouble if she hadn't been," answered Bell with a laugh.

It is essential to go when the ide is low and the lower the better, in order to ensure plenty of time.

The official tide-table must be studied. The summer months are preferable because in them the lowest tides occur in the daytime. The shore of Scoke Bay is not only interesting to those who are concerned with extinct forms of animal life obviously related to existing organisms: it has given us a number of specimens of the plant life that once covered the land

ALUMNI FOSTERS MUSICAL TALENT By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON Record Reviews

In 1937, a number of graduates of the Toronto Conservatory of Music living in Victoria, got together and decided to form an organization.

At first it seemed that this was just another of the city's numerous clubs and societies. Someony has said that, in North America, when ever two people meet they form a club. The inference is that many are of no significance outside, their limited sociability.

Mrs. George Phillips was the first president and there were 15 members who were pledged to promote the work of the conservatory and foster each other's talents. Several years later they became affiliated with the Canadawide Toronto Conservatory Alumi. Today, the Victoria Chapter is known as one of the most active and has an approximate membership of 40.

The 1951 executive consists of Mrs. Maurice Chandler, president, and Mrs. John Gough, Miss Noel Smith, Mrs. W. W. Boutler and Miss Helen Gibson.

While the chapter has widened its original aims, the encouraging of members to keep up their own muesic is still of primary importance.

Through informal private rectains and public concerts, the Chapter provides opportunities for performance; a challenge which the neembers take up readily. The result of this stimulus is that time for practise is found by busy housewives and business women who gould otherwise be inclined to let fausic become a matter for listening only. The greatest difficulties are overcome by ensemble players and singers who must each fit into a timetabers of the group.

Now it is a complex organization with large buildings to operate, with a program which meets almost any interest, and serves all ages and both men and women.

During this growth the Y.M.C.A. pionerered and developed many ideas which have become accepted by our modern world and considered to be the normal thing in our communities.

Some of these important innovations are the developing of physical education—the introduction and development of boys work—organized camping—night schools—adult education—H1X work in high schools—fatier and son movement. The original Young Men's Christain Association was formed in London, England, by George Williams in 1844 during the period of greet industrial expansion, when young men by the thousands were pouring into the cities from the country. Working conditions were very poor, with long hours and no-provisions for lesiure or social life.
